As the carnage ensues, ordinary lives are dramatically upturned: The women of a Sikh village resolve to make the ultimate sacrifice when faced with imminent death at the hands of an advancing mob; an elderly couple undertakes a perilous journey when the one place they call home is no longer safe for them; and wracked with guilt, Nathu must come to terms with his unwitting role in instigating the violence. Yet, despite the darkness of the times, rare moments of unexpected friendship and love also surface...A chilling reminder of the consequences of religious intolerance and communal prejudice. The Gift of a Cow is set in the area around Lucknow at the turn of the 20th C. Through the stories of several village characters, the author gives us an insight into how 'development' and 'traditional culture' can both form a trap that doesn't allow the peasant farmer to escape. Each character is trying to 'escape' from what seems to be their fate...The title of the novel -- Godaan in the original -- refers to, as the glossary explains, "the gift of a cow made by a pious Hindu to a brahman at the time of death".	https://www.britannica.com/biography/Premchand Review of book and film: https://madhulikaliiddle.com/2014/11/03/godaan-1963/
